Unlucky in love?

For some people, love seems to run smoothly, but not for everyone. Three teenagers tell us about their experiences.

Kat

I was on vacation last year in California and I met a really nice boy. I went out with him a few times, and of course I fell in love with him. Everything seemed to be going well. Then he suddenly seemed to lose interest. At first I thought he might have met someone else, but he said he hadn't. We didn't have arguments or anything, but I could tell that he wasn't really interested any more. I think he didn't want to break up with me, because he didn't want to hurt my feelings. So in the end I told him I wanted to end the relationship, and he seemed quite relieved. I was upset for a while, but we're still friends now, which is nice.

Jamie

I'm definitely unlucky in love. Every time I meet a really special girl I think: OK, this must be the girl for me – but it always turns out that she's already going out with someone else! I went out with a girl for a little while ago, but it just didn't feel right for me. She must have been quite keen on me, because when I told her I wanted to break up she was quite upset - that was quite hard. So for the moment I'm single, and still looking for that someone special.

Rachel

I've had a few bad experiences with relationships. The worst one was last year. I was going out with a really nice boy. We both liked the same things – music, movies, having fun, and I thought that everything was fine. Then one day I saw him in town with another girl. At first I thought – it can't be him – there must be a mistake. Then I thought it must be his sister or something. But of course it wasn't! He was just no good, and I broke up with him immediately. I was quite upset at the time, and it took a while before I could trust boys again. But I'm fine now. I think these experiences make you stronger.
