Units 11–12 [Track 7]

A Listen to the conversations. Check the correct answers.

1.

PATRICK: Mom, when did you get your first car?

MOM: Well, by the time I was a junior in high school, I had gotten a part-time job so that I could buy a used car.

PATRICK: But you won't let me get a part-time job!

MOM: I know, but before I got my first job, I was really immature. You know, I should have spent more time trying to get good grades instead of trying to get a car.

PATRICK: You didn't get good grades?!

MOM: Well, I almost didn't graduate at the end of my senior year. Luckily, a school counselor noticed what was happening. He said I'd be able to buy any kind of car I wanted after I finished college and got a good-paying job.

PATRICK: So he helped you get your priorities straight.

MOM: Yes! A diploma was more important than a car.

2.

PATRICK: Now I understand why you won't let me get a job.

MOM: Good! That's my boy!

PATRICK: However . . . I'm still interested in hearing about what else you did . . . or didn't do . . . in high school. Do you have any other regrets?

MOM: Well, if I'd been more serious about school, I wouldn't have taken classes like theater production. I should have taken more college-required classes.

PATRICK: Do you mean like higher math classes?

MOM: Exactly. And that's why I'm so concerned about the courses you choose. I want you to have no regrets when you graduate next year.

3.

AUSTIN: Gosh, Tess, have you noticed how many coffee shops there are around campus these days?

TESS: Well, Austin, there are at least five, and each one has a different atmosphere, lighting, furnishings . . . I don't know how they all stay in business!

AUSTIN: Sounds normal to me. In order to be successful, it's important to have all those things, plus great drinks and snacks. And it has to be different from the rest.

TESS: I guess you're right. And don't forget good music.

AUSTIN: Yes, I agree. There's one place I like best. It's called Jazzy's, and they only play . . . jazz music!

TESS: And you like that?

AUSTIN: Sure! It's my favorite kind of music to study by.

4.

AUSTIN: How about you, Tess? Where do you go?

TESS: Me? Well, I love the Roasted Bean because I always get a perfect latte.

AUSTIN: The Roasted Bean? Where's that?

TESS: On College Avenue. It's the most popular coffee bar near campus because of its great mix of music.

AUSTIN: The most popular, huh?

TESS: Yeah, and for it to stay that way, it needs to attract new customers. So, let's go and I'll buy you a coffee, Austin!

AUSTIN: Uh, thanks, Tess, but I don't drink coffee.

TESS: But you were . . . OK, chai tea, then. Let's go!
