(Track 10)

Brian Hey, Marilyn. I'm home!

Marilyn Hi, Brian. . . . Ooh! Where did you get all that stuff? Did you go shopping?

Brian No, no. Well, not exactly. I was on my way to the gym, and just around the block from the gym I saw this garage sale, so I just stopped to have a look. . . .

Marilyn So I see. OK, show me what you got.

Brian You're going to really love what I found. How about this painting? Isn't it great? The woman who sold it said I was getting a real bargain. She was asking $40 for it, but I got it for 25.

Marilyn Hmm. To be honest, I don't really like it. And don't we already have too many pictures?

Brian Maybe. But I thought I could hang it up in my office.

Marilyn Well, all right. At least you can use it.

Brian Now let's see. What else? I got some books. And they had all these clothes, so I got myself a jacket and . . . I picked up some things for you, too.

Marilyn Uh-oh. Like what?

Brian There's this silk scarf. I thought it was really nice. And this sweater.

Marilyn The scarf's beautiful, but I never wear scarves. And the sweater. . . . Why did you get that? I already have one just like it.

Brian Maybe that's why I thought you might like it.

Marilyn Well, I do like it, but I don't need it.

Brian Oh, well. I'll just put them away in the garage for now.

Marilyn You know, . . . the garage is getting pretty full. Maybe we should have our own garage sale.

Brian That's all right with me. It'd be nice to have some more room to put stuff.
